There is the political demagague and the newspaper demagogue. The latter may be yellow for political effect, for popularity, profit or power. These all belong in the same pod.

A newspaper has not done its full duty even when it has told the truth. It must honestly interpret the truth, also. It is sometimes possible to tell the truth in such a manner that the effect of it is the same as telling Facts may be arranged in such sequence or anecented in such manner as to lead the mind of the reader to a false conclumonths ago. This is very possible to be done in the discussion of diplomacy and international relations because the element of policial or racial friction looms so large.

Mr. Hughes explained the neeessity of a certain degree of secreey and reserv in diplomacy even in "open negotiations," An irresponsible or venal press can do great damage and create more misunderstandings than the most skilful diplomat can clear a most skilful diplomat can clear a "solemn referendum" next up.
